

DAILY RECORD-UNION

TUESDAY, JULY 17, 1888

"Grover Cleveland has done more to advance the cause of free trade than any Prime Minister of England has ever done."—London Spectator.

"The only benefit England ever receives from Irishmen is when they emigrate to America and vote for free trade."—London Times.

THE CLAIMS OF THE TWO PARTIES.

Nothing in political activity is more certain than this—that the Democracy is badly frightened to its antagonism to free trade. Up to the time the Convention assembled at St. Louis the Oregon election was the only one in which the Democracy put it upon the defensive. It is now the Democracy and the platform of the Mills bill preach free trade. If this is not an admission that absolute free trade would not be in any wise tolerable under conditions existing in America, then we are unable to understand plain English. But the journals of England suffer from no confusion of ideas on this subject. With one voice they declare that Mr. Cleveland's message and subsequent letters breathe the true free trade spirit.

It may be very readily admitted that the Mills bill is not free trade pure and simple; no one has claimed that it is. If it were, it would contain very little of scheduled duties. Free trade is the liberty—not compulsion—of any one to buy and import from foreign markets if he finds it profitable, and free from the imposition of tariffs that would restrict the gratification of his desire. The doctrine of free trade is that it secures to each nation the good things of all, and as Perry puts it, "arms each with the improvements of all, maximizes to every toll the rewards of his work, and tends to unite all nations in bonds of peace and good will."

Opposed to this tendency is that system advocated by the Republican party which looks first to the protection of home industries as essential to the securing to the toiler of America due reward for his labor, the development of a country, all but capable of living, if need be within itself, and the consequent prosperity of the whole people; secondarily it considers purchasing abroad. It is not the purpose alone to obtain revenue under this system, but to prevent that unequal competition between foreign articles and those of like character of domestic production, which results in the destruction of the latter by bringing them down to prices at which they cannot under our system of society and labor, be produced, without reducing the laborer to the level of the foreign ill-paid and socially degraded artisan. To quote Senator Edmunds' definition of the claim of the party, it is "to protect American labor and production through such customs laws as shall lead to home production of things of home consumption, as against the consumption of things of foreign production; while the great mass of the Democratic members of Congress have been, and still are in favor of increasing the consumption of things of foreign production by such diminution of customs duties, admittedly, will increase importations for consumption, and, necessarily, by so much diminish the consumption of things produced in the United States."

From this, with the fear that has seized upon them and put it on the defensive, the Democratic orators and organs will devote themselves assiduously to denying persistently that the doctrine of the Republican party is sound, and to hotly denying that the President or his party ever contemplated or now mean free trade. The people are to pass upon the respective claims of these contestants. An answer to these defenses is that the English free traders recognize in the attitude of the Democratic party that indorsement of the free-trade system. Yet though the English preach this doctrine, it is a fact worthy of consideration that their colonies break away from it with impunity. The Dominion of Canada long ago set up a protective tariff against products and manufactures, and against even those of the mother country itself. The colony of Victoria, having a thoroughly protective system, is the most prosperous of the Australian colonies. New South Wales exists under a free-trade system, and its industries prospering are those of the ruling class, while those requiring the most skilled labor have no encouragement. But in Victoria, under the protective policy, there is employment in manufacturing industries in the fine arts, and engineering, steam, and fine iron work for all who come. She sends to New South Wales about all the machinery the latter uses in its industries. "Contrast," says Mr. Buchanan before the Society of Arts in London last May, "Sydney with Victoria, and what do you see in the way of manufactures? Where you can see one chimney-stick in and about Sydney, you can see ten in and about Melbourne."

Though Great Britain stands for the free-trade doctrine into which her journals insist that Mr. Cleveland and the Democratic party draft, another English colony—New Zealand—has just set up a protective tariff rule of the most pronounced order. Here too, we have Mr. Edward Jones, an engineer of England's South African Colony, saying in London recently: "We look with regret upon the condition of things in some of our British colonies, particularly in Victoria. It is true that about one-third of the population of Victoria is crowded into one huge town, but, as we say, there is to be found in Victoria a great preponderance of forces than in South Africa, where we go to the extreme, and I very much fear whether we shall ever have such equipment until we adopt the policy which has made Victoria and Canada as great as they are today. It is a question which I, as a member of the Golden Club, ought to be reluctant to be asked, with regret that I have to make it; but I think considerable advances have, in quite recent years, been made in South Africa in the direction of protection."

It is reported by our Consul that there is a marked improvement in agriculture in Italy, and that there is a steady increase in all crops, showing a greater economy and industry in cultivation. A correspondent of the Record-Union, in whom we have great confidence, writes from Italy that there is increasing inquiry for American agricultural implements and tools, and the Government largely interests itself in their introduction. A proposition is now under advisement by the Government of Italy and by the California Museum Association of this city to effect exchange of works of art between the city of Sacramento and some examples of our better class of agricultural implements, to be received by the Government of Italy for experiment and introduction. It would be a very gratifying result to have the city's art gallery made doubly attractive by rare art works contributed by the Italian Government. But as the proposition is based on an exchange, and emanated from this side in that form, it will afford our manufacturers peculiarly favorable conditions under which to get a few of their machines and tools officially introduced. It is, therefore, to be hoped that since the Italian Government signifies its willingness to effect such exchange, the public spirit on this side, and local pride, will insure its consummation.

This is the concise, incisive and straightforward way in which Senator Edmunds puts it, and there is no man who is better qualified by observation and ability to judge: "It may be safely asserted that there has not been, since the foundation of the government, a more sweeping and persistent and political removal of citizens holding minor offices and employments than under the present administration. At first it was done, in some degree, on the representation that the officers in question had been guilty of undue political activity or misconduct in office, or inefficiency, these accusations being supported by affidavits made in secret and kept secret in the possession of the President, or the department. In most instances they were grossly untrue, and in some perjured, and the officers accused were denied all knowledge and inspection of the charges and all means of defense. The authors of misrepresentation and perjury having accomplished their purpose, were screened from criminal prosecution and public contempt, while their helpless victims were expelled from office under a profession of reform in the civil service."

Mr. Cleveland appears to be the choice of the English and Scotch press with whom General Harrison and Morton did not favor. The latter gentlemen are to be congratulated. There was one paper quoted in the dispatches of June 30th as favoring General Harrison, and that was the leading Parnell organ of Dublin. But all others, of all shades of English political faith, smile upon Mr. Cleveland and his tariff message, and congratulate him upon his renomination. Probably this favor is to be accounted for by the remark of a Birmingham paper, "to some extent we are interested in this contest." The Thunder certainly comprehended the weight of its words when it declared that "the only benefit England receives from Irishmen is when they emigrate to America and vote for free trade." The English Unionist organ that declared that "the President has made himself the propagator of free-trade principles" evidently understood American politics better than the Democrats who go about denying for the President that which the English paper credits him with.

For an example of mean journalism commend us to the Philadelphia Record on the Fourth of July. On that day Dr. Shurtliff wrote to it, asking why it suppressed the facts in the review of General Harrison's record in the Senate that he voted for the last anti-Chinese bill passed. The Record thereupon squirmed and twisted and went over all the votes once more, until it reached the last, when it said: "The vote by which the last bill on the subject of Chinese immigration was passed, on the 1st of June, 1886, is not given in the Congressional Record." It adds that if some one will furnish the data it will supply any omission it has made. Data, forsooth! The Record knew the fact, but is too partisan and hidebound to state it manfully. Dr. Shurtliff was justified in his expression when he said: "Meaner than an outright liar is the man that tells a half truth."

PRESIDENTIAL POINTS.

We think Helva Lockwood is beaten.—Boston Herald.

Whatever may be said of the red bandana, the stars and stripes are not to be sneezed at.—V. T. Tribune.

M. H. De Young, editor of the San Francisco Chronicle, now says any Republican can carry California. This is good news, but will Mr. De Young please explain why he made so much noise in Chicago before the nomination?—Inter-Ocean.

Call it waving the American flag, or what you will, there is a burning desire among our people to see our diplomatic dealings with the Old World marked by a more independent, manly spirit than Mr. Bayard has infused into them.—Albany Journal.

In every Presidential canvass there are more or less transfers of voters from each party to the other. But in no previous year for the past quarter of a century have so many life-long and eminent Democrats come over to the Republicans as have done in the past two weeks.—Globe Journal.

Four years ago Sam Randall stumped New York State, and took his solemn oath that the Democratic party would not distinguish the tariff if Grover Cleveland should be elected. Mr. Randall is not offering himself as the abettor-maker of the Democratic party this time.—Globe Journal.

General Harrison is not equal to Senator Ingalls in the command of picturesque and vitriolic English, but he knows how to express himself forcibly, nevertheless, with regard to the party of his own choice, as is testified by the following extract from one of his speeches in 1882, replying to an insinuation of the Democratic party of friendship for the soldiers.—The man who lived through the war of the rebellion and did not make some sacrifice for the success of the Union army, who did not say a brave word or do one brave thing, when with bare and bleeding breasts, our soldiers were being butchered, and our country—can never be enshrined as the soldier's friend.—Globe Democrat.

CHANGED DAILY FOR HALE BROS. & CO.—JULY 17, 1888.

VALUES IN

LADIES'  UNDERWEAR.

Organized Labor always means a Saving.

That's one reason why READY-MADE UNDERWEAR is so much CHEAPER than the home-made article.

The manufacturer's other advantage lies in the fact that he buys direct from the mills and in large quantities. No waste either by his system.

The exact yardage for each garment is known, and that amount only is consumed.

We point to some of our prices in proof of these assertions:

Chemises of good Muslin, yoke of embroidery finished with edging, 33 cents.

Chemises in five different styles, trimmed with lace, embroidery and tucks, at 47 cents

Six lines of Chemises extra quality, trimmed with embroidery, finished with edging, 73 cents

Drawers of good Muslin and tacked, 25 cents; with embroidery, 40 cents.

Night Gowns, with tucked front, at 50 and 69 cents, with tucked front, Pompadour shape, wide sleeves, at 99 cents.

Skirts handsomely trimmed, at 39, 55 and 75 cents.
